Note that languages courses that are numbered as 1311 and 1411 are identical courses, except that the first is a three-credit hour version and the second is a four-credit-hour version. The same applies to those that are numbered as 1312 and 1412. What this means is that the course content is the same for both the first and second course in each pair; what is different is the number of lab hours (and consequently overall hours) necessary to satisfy course time requirements. In most cases, students in a Study Abroad context will be well-served to opt for the three-credit-hour courses.

Each course has a minimum number of class hours that must be completed. Because there are time-on-task requirements for these courses, students must complete AT LEAST the number of contact hours for each course for which they are enrolled, generally calculated at 20 hours per complete week of instruction, which is the minimum number of classroom hours students in this program may enroll for at the Language Institute. If a student is doing multiple courses, they must sign up and attend the programs and number of weeks that will reflect the minimum.

Contact hours here are based on an instructional hour (whether lecture or laboratory) this is composed of 50 literal minutes of learning activity and 10 literal minutes of break time. Consequently for the purpose described above, 48 contact hours equates to 2,400 literal minutes of instruction, interaction, activity, or, in short, "time-on-task."
